ally known, made his report to the President, and a most interesting and instructive document it is, too. He says that throughout his travels he found the Men who Elected him, as yet. The following passage is from a speech made a few days ago in the public mind was so despondent that if readmission at some future time, under whatever condition, had been promised, it would then have been looked upon as a favor. The most uncompromising as a favor. The most uncompromising rebels prepared for leaving the country. ses remained in a state of fearful expectancy." The first reconstruc-tion proclamation broke the spell, sub-that they had had quite sufficient of the enuine article during the war and that they would now have very weak stomachs for the counterfeit. But "brayed in the mortar as they have been" still by their foolishness abides with them to a tempted the other day however to "cut it rather thick" at Petersburg by get-ting up an affair at which no Yankees were to be invited. It was no disgrac was quite another matter it seems. 'All is well that ends well." The tour nament did not end well. Gen. Gibbon looked after it thus:

bon looked after it thus:

"Head-Quarters District of the Nottoway, Petersburg, Va., Dec. 19, 1865.—General Orders No. 41.—It having been reported to these Headquarters that a certain social gathering is to be held in this city, only with the understanding that no "Yankees" are to be invited thereto, and the Major General commanding being satisfied that the idea of such a restriction could have emanated only from the intellect of those too craven to fight in defense of their opinions, or too degraded to appreciate the liberal spirit in which they their opinions, or too degraded to appreciate the liberal spirit in which they have been treated, it is hereby ordered, that at the tournament to be held on Wednesday, the 20th inst., no officer or oldier of the United States shall lend o any party in said tournament any orse, saddle, bridle, or equipment of my kind; and all persons loyal to the lovernment of the United States are arred against attending spakets. who do attend may be marked as un-worthy to associate with those who have honor and honesty enough to regard their oaths of allegiance as something more than lip-service, and too much principle to be blindly led by a foolish It is further ordered that no officer

The tournament, ment of Louisiana, has just issued an stripped of the many Yankee accomstripped of the many Yankee accom-modelions as it was, promised to be such a beggarly affair that an indefinite and be governed by the same people with whom they have always lived," and that they "should use eyery honest effort to command their respect." Some of the people among whom the representative men of the country who linst, minuted and elected him, and who have thus far sustained him:

I know there has been a studied and tion proclamation broke the spell, substituted hope for apprehension, and prepared the South for the resumption of much of the old spirit. As this spirit was developed, one proclamation after another by the President was made necessary, and week after week fresh conditions were demanded, to which the people have submitted, but unwillingly. General Schurz finds four classes in the South, none of whom are entirely loyal, though one class is honestly endeavoring to accommodate itself tirely loyal, though one class is honestiy endeavoring to accommodate itself to the new order of things. All of these classes, he says, are agreed that further resistance to the power of the National Government is useless, and submission to its authority a matter of necessity.

All movements in favor of separation from the Union have, therefore, been practically abandoned, and resistance to our military forces, on that score, has ceased. The General thinks that this kind of loyalty, "produced by the irresistible pressure of forces," is decidedly of a "negative character."

THE Eastern Virginians are rather a peculiar people just at this time. They are eating a good many good rations and between meals doing the chivalry business quite extensively in the shape of tournaments. One would suppose blood.

I believe it to be the sentiment and will of the country that we should demand the amplest guarantees for the ine article during the war and that would now have very weak stomfor the counterfeit. But "brayed a mortar as they have been" still foolishes abide with the tentonic foolishes and the tentonic foolishes abide with the tentonic foolishes are the tenton by a firm and inflexible adherence to principle to secure all the guarantees that the patriotic and liberty-loving men of the country require. I believe the President of the United States has labored according to his sense of public duty to prepare the rebel States for restoration and to secure the liberties of the enslayed people of the country. I would have acted differently in some things, but he has done nothing to prevent the Congress of the United States from moving right straight forward and onward in the adoption of the necessary legislation to complete the great work of unity and liberty. He has made no issue with him. He does not undertake to dictate to us, he has has made no issue with him. He does not undertake to dictate to us, he has pursued his own line of policy. And we ought to follow the convictions of duty; if we believe that we should go further than he has gone, let us pass the needed legislation; if then the President shall take issue with us, an issue will be made.

I do not believe that any issue will be made by the President. I have an undoubting faith that if we enset the needful legislation to secure the great liberties of all men and bring back the rebel States into Congress, it will receive the sanction and approval of the Executive.

I know, sir, that it has been, and is crought | Gen. Canby, commanding the Departbut metaphiscally. The tournament, stripped of the many Yankee necommodotions as it was, promised to be such a beggarty affair that an indefinite postponement was deemed advisable.—And so it was postponed.

This order is not relished by the Secossion journals and they call the General sundry hard names, quite as choice as those which they have long been in the babit of applying to the "Yankees." But it's not probable that they will affect his equaminity, or enus, bit to retract what he has published.—It is one while they are long and smiting the hand that feeds them and protects them, they must take the consequences.

Maxy of our Wheeling people will remember Captain Charles I. Wickersham, who lived among us a few years ago. Ha is now Major Wickersham, and is Siperintendent of the "Bureau of Refugees, Freedman and Abandoned Eands" for the Southern District of North Carolina, headquarters at Wilmington. We have before us a circular recently issued by him to the Freedmen, in which he gives them a great deal of wholesome business counsel. He informs them that their dream of divided lands about the helidays is a delusion, and calls upon them for remember that they are "to live among and be governed by the same people with whom they have always lived," and that they "should use every honesa effort to command their respect."

and that they "should use every honest effort to command their respect."

Some of the people among whom the darkies are to live and whom they are called upon to respect, are pretty hard specimens of "white trash," as we judge from the following clip from the Wilmington Heruld of December 14th.

"MISCHORNATION.—A curious case of miscegenation has lately been report."

On his return home last summer, after the surrender, rather a disagreeable state of affairs was found to exist, for it can assertiated that during his absence, his young and sirfusous wife had taken up with a negro, and had been living with him for some time past. The result of this illicit intercourse proyed to be a mulatto child.

General Carl Schurz Report.
Our readers are generally aware, we presume, that last summer and fall General Carl Schurz traveled extensively throughout the South, by invitation and under the ausylices of the Government, for the purpose of informing the Administration as to the exact condition of public sentiment in the late rebel States. He has, as is also generally known, made his report to the President, and a most interesting and instructive document it its, too. He says which we construct the bright of a white man, isn't it?
